The attack was accompanied by a bombardment of the Belgian coast.

Repulsed, Say Germans.

Berlin, Oct. 14.—A general attack by the British along almost the whole front from Ypres to Loos, accompanied by bombardment of the Belgian coast, is reported in the official statement of to-day from the war office. All attacks of the British are said by army headquarters to have failed.

The official announcement regarding operations on the western front follows:

"While enemy monitors were shelling the coast near Westende (Belgium), and the artillery of the enemy was shelling our positions to the north of Ypres without success, the British began an attack behind clouds of smoke and gas over almost the entire front between Ypres and Loos. This attack failed completely. At several places the smoke clouds floated into the trenches of the enemy. Only at some small points to the northeast and east of Vermelles were the British able to obtain footing in our first line trenches. They have since been driven out, for the most part, with hand grenades."
